is a provider and developer of innovative, high-quality people and process solutions for consultants and business professionals who are working with individuals, teams and organisations in the Asian Market.

"Your preferred partner for all your profiling and assessment needs"

Your ability to read people will greatly affect the way you deal with them. When you understand a person's natural behavioural tendencies, you are able to predict the likely responses which would help you strategise your approach and adapt your communication style. You are far more likely to solicit a favourable response when you know what another person wants than to be clueless about the person you are dealing with. But what exactly should you be observing about the other person in order to become people smart is what this session is all about.

BENEFITS

- Increases our understanding of self and others
- Increases our social and emotional competence
- Bring out the best in others
- Reduce unnecessary conflicts and resolves misunderstandings
- Become both a manager and leader of people
